Subject: New Freedom of Information Request

Dear Mr. Duffy,

As I explained in the letter to the Secretary that I copied you in on yesterday, we believe that an examination of all the FOI requests that have not been fulfilled, and therefore are not included on the PA website, will put the agency's commitment to transparency into clearer perspective. We therefore are requesting those records. I expect that you can filter your FOI log to identify those instances in which the requested documents were not provided. If that log includes the dates when follow ups were made and a record of the final determination, that would be all we need at this point.

The attachment from the Executive Director of the Committee on Open Government is an advisory opinion dealing with the release of FOI requests. Since the Port Authority aims to maintain a Freedom of Information Code that is consistent with the two states, the COOG opinion should clarify any objections to releasing this information. It concludes: "In short, except in the situation in which a request includes intimate personal information, in which case identifying details may be withheld, I believe that requests made under the Freedom of Information Law should generally be disclosed."

In order to expedite delivery of the documents, we request that if it would be a lengthier process than what I described above, that the records be released in batches of reverse chronological order.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Margaret Donovan

FOIL-AO-13471

July 17, 2002

The staff of the Committee on Open Government is authorized to issue advisory opinions. The ensuing staff advisory opinion is based solely upon the information presented in your correspondence.

Dear

I have received your inquiry concerning rights of access to "FOIL requests."

In this regard, as a general matter, the Freedom of Information Law is based upon a presumption of access. Stated differently, all records of an agency are available, except to the extent that records or portions thereof fall within one or more grounds for denial appearing in §87(2)(a) through (i) of the Law. From my perspective, with the exception of portions of certain kinds of requests, the records sought are accessible under the law.

In my view, the only instances in which the records at issue may be withheld in part would involve situations in which, due to the nature of their contents, disclosure would constitute "an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy" [see Freedom of Information Law, §§87(2)(b) and 89(2)]. For instance, if a recipient of public assistance seeks records pertaining to his or her participation in a public assistance program, disclosure of the request would itself indicate that he or she has received public assistance. In that case, I believe that identifying details could be deleted to protect against an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy.

As stated by the Court of Appeals, the exception in the Freedom of Information Law pertaining to the protection of personal privacy involves details about one's life "that would ordinarily and reasonably be regarded as intimate, private information" [Hanig v. State Department of Motor Vehicles, 79 NY2d 106, 112 (1992)]. In most instances, a request or the correspondence pertaining to it between the agency and the applicant for records does not include intimate information about the applicant. For example, if a request is made for an agency's budget, the minutes of a meeting of a public body, or an agency's contract to purchase goods or services, the request typically includes nothing of an intimate nature about the applicant. Further, many requests are made by firms, associations, or persons representing business entities. In those cases, it is clear that there is nothing "personal" about the requests, for they are made by persons acting in a business or similar capacity (see e.g., American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals v. NYS Department of Agriculture and Markets, Supreme Court, Albany County, May 10, 1989; Newsday v. NYS Department of Health, Supreme Court, Albany County, October 15, 1991).

In short, except in the situation in which a request includes intimate personal information, in which case identifying details may be withheld, I believe that requests made under the Freedom of Information Law should generally be disclosed.

I hope that I have been of assistance.

Sincerely,

Robert J. Freeman Executive Director

Re: Freedom of Information Reference No. 14389

Dear Ms. Donovan:

This is in response to your October 31, 2013 request, which has been processed under the Port Authority's Freedom of Information Code (the "Code") for a log of all FOI requests that have not been fulfilled for a two-year period from October 31, 2011 to November 1, 2013.

Material responsive to your request and available under the Code can be found on the Port Authority's website at <http://www.panynj.gov/corporate-information/foi/14389-O.pdf>. Paper copies of the available records are available upon request.

Please refer to the above FOI reference number in any future correspondence relating to your request.

Very truly yours,

Daniel D. Duffy
FOI Administrator
