Office of the Executive Director
Bulletin #11-15

June 6, 2011

I am pleased to announce that Philippe Visser has been named Director of the World Trade Center Redevelopment Department. In this role, Philippe will oversee all aspects of the real estate development and operations of the World Trade Center site. Given the acceleration of the World Trade Center redevelopment and the growing need to seamlessly coordinate development and construction roles Downtown, Philippe will report to the Chief of Capital Planning, who also oversees the World Trade Center Construction Department.

Most recently, Philippe spearheaded the negotiations with Condé Nast to lease 1 million square feet at One World Trade Center for its world headquarters, a landmark lease for the World Trade Center and the largest lease Downtown in 25 years. Philippe also led the business team that negotiated the World Trade Center East Side Development Plan, which will ensure the full restoration of the east side of the World Trade Center site and the rational, phased development of commercial office space.

Please join me in welcoming Philippe to his new role as he continues to advance the Port Authority's efforts Downtown.

Philippe will take over for Richard Gladstone, who has served as Director of the World Trade Center Redevelopment Department for more than two years. Richard led the Department during a critical time of transition Downtown and helped develop the framework that would lead to the successful restructuring of the development and financing of the three commercial office towers planned for the east side of the World Trade Center site. Richard will move over to the Department of Planning and Development, where he will report to the Director on an array of projects key to the region's long-term growth.

Please join me in welcoming Richard to this new role as he continues to take on some of the key challenges and priorities at the agency.
